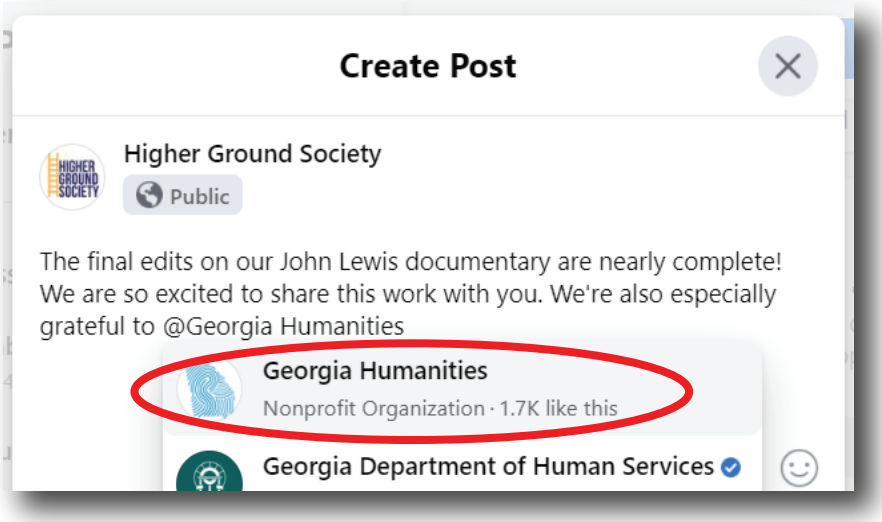
Getting Social with Georgia Humanities

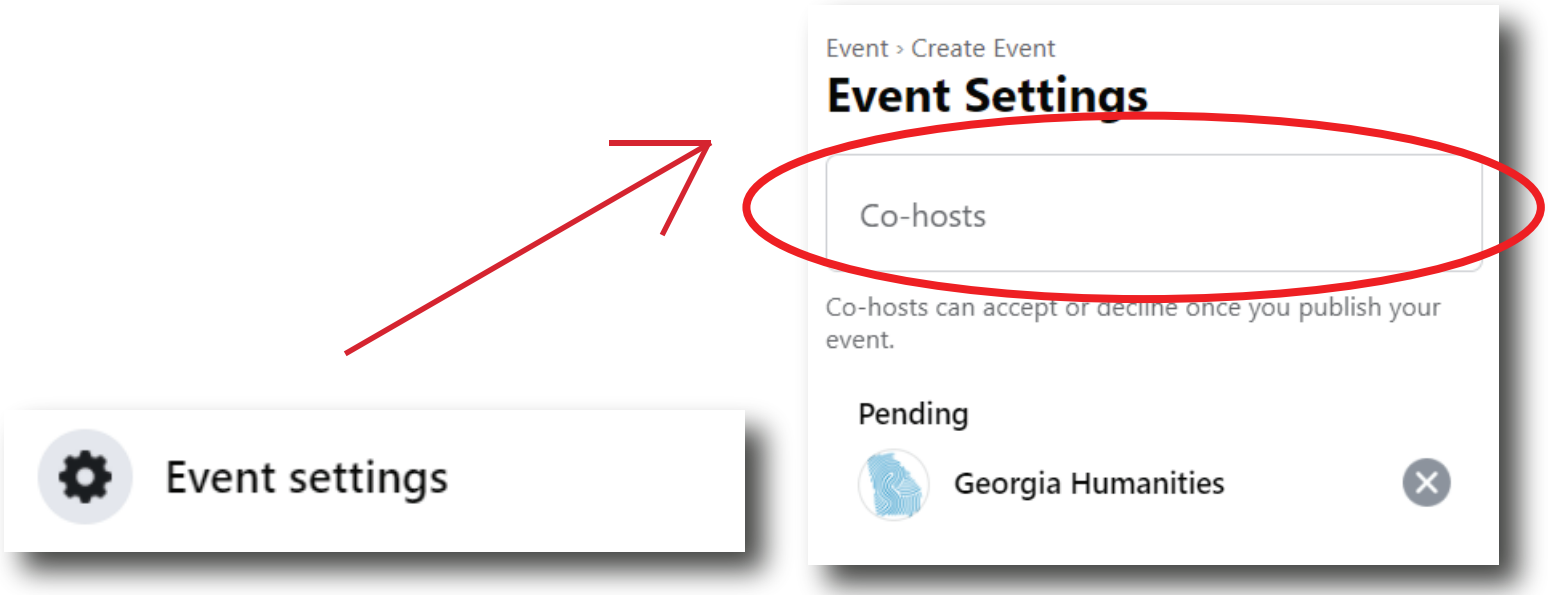
Recently funded by Georgia Humanities?
Let the world know on social media!

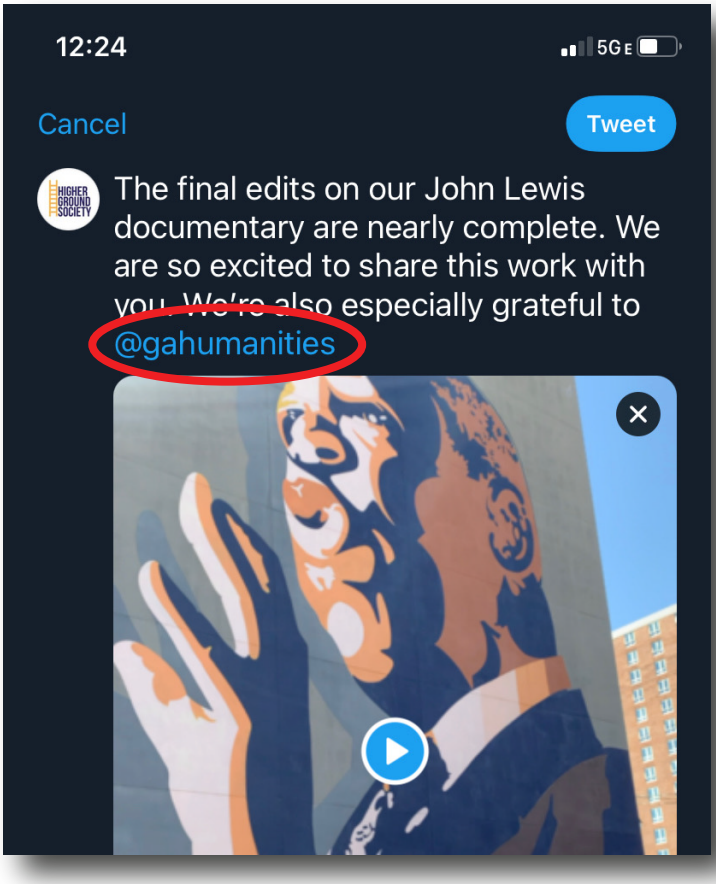
On facebook

If you're sharing information about your GaHum-funded project in a Facebook post, be sure to tag us (@GeorgiaHumanities) so that we can also share it with our statewide and national audience.



If you're creating a Facebook event for a GaHum-funded program, be sure to invite us to be a "Co-host" in the Event Settings. This adds your event to the list of events on Georgia Humanities' Facebook page for all to see.



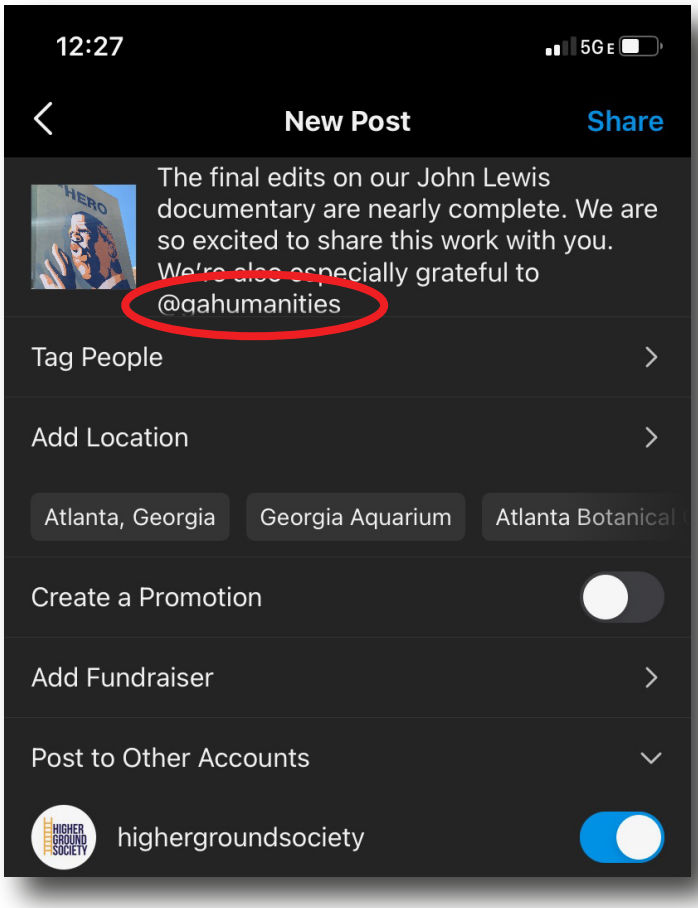


On twitter

[Share short 280-character updates] about your GaHum-funded project on Twitter. Mention us (@gahumanities) to get a 'Like' or a 'Retweet.' We want to brag about you!

On Instagram

[Instagram] is great for sharing visual updates on your organization and its GaHum-funded projects. Tag us (@gahumanities) in photos, captions or stories to be considered for reposts!



For more guidance on how to plug your project into Georgia Humanities' social media channels, contact grants and communications manager Jerald Crook at jcrook@georgiahumanities.org.
