Civil War to Civil Rights: Building the Georgia Humanities Council's Network

On Monday November 19th the Georgia Humanities Council, in collaboration with Morehouse College, held a round table discussion focused on the formation of a statewide network of organizations that are observing the 150th and 50th anniversaries of milestone events in the Civil War and Civil Rights Movement. With the aim of creating a comprehensive database of events and programs dedicated to this rich era of American history this meeting created an opportunity for collaboration in the field of humanities unprecedented by any other effort. The discussion was both dynamic and exciting as a diverse group of organizations, representing various interests, constituencies, and schools of thought, excitedly shared their plans and ambitions. Representative from this diverse network of organizations were all smiles in the group photo, taken before lunch.
