The Legacy of General James Longstreet

At this program, Thomas H. Rasmussen, a Longstreet Society member, portrayed Gen. James Longstreet, who “appeared” at the Northeast Georgia History Center, where he “reflected” on his career as Gen. Robert E. Lee’s principal military adviser, his friendship with Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, his ownership of the Piedmont Hotel from 1876 to 1904 in Gainesville, and his family life with wife Louise and their children. This program also included costumed musicians performing Civil War-era songs, discussions of Civil War memory, and guided tours of the Piedmont Hotel museum and gardens.
